Ethics Bowl Competition

Germline editing, food and energy shortages, artificial intelligence, and mental health were among the topics that were debated under the umbrella of Ethics in Contemporary Society as part of NCICU's 12th Annual Ethics Bowl. Students from 16 campuses participated in the event on February 10 and 11 at the North Carolina Legislative Complex in Raleigh. Queens University of Charlotte (pictured above) was named champion after facing Wingate University in the final round debating the topic of voting rights for convicted felons. Queens had faced Campbell University in the semifinals, as Wingate met Montreat College. The case for that round considered the ethics of removing Russia from the Security Council of the United Nations. At a banquet held Friday evening at the NC Museum of History, Leslie Garvin, executive director of North Carolina Campus Engagement, told participants that to be a citizen of the United States is to choose to live ethically.
